CHAIN GANG GIRLS 2

2 x 60 — HDready
Available Immediately

Produced in 2009

Fifteen female convicts chained together in the sweltering desert. They're in for drugs, prostitution, assault, theft, and other crimes. From 12 days to 12 months, these law-breaking ladies start out in Tent City - outdoor barracks they share with 600 others. But in the oppressive heat, tempers flare and lines are crossed. The worst of the worst get thrown into Lockdown. Here, they spend 30 days on the notorious chain.

We'll meet the brains behind the program - Sheriff Joe Arpaio. People call him the "toughest sheriff" in America. He brought back the controversial prison chain gang soon after he was elected. Sheriff Joe spends more money per meal on his dogs than he does the inmates.

Of course, we'll meet the latest women to make it on the chain. We'll reveal how they got there and witness their month in shackles.

It's no 'walk in the park.' When one's got to go to the bathroom, they all go. When one's dragging, the rest must pick up the slack. It's an intense program pushing their emotional limits and forcing them to confront the psychological chains that put them there.

There's inmates like Marta. With three kids and no job, she turned tricks to make a quick buck. On the chain, her maternal instincts take over but will the others give her the respect she's looking for? Then, Nicole joins the line. She's lived on the streets, dealing drugs since puberty. Can this 21-year old learn to work with others for one unified cause? Plus there's Sunny. She's been on the line before, got out and is now back in. What did she do to get in for 'Round 2'? Will this give her the wake up call she needs to clean up her act once and for all?

Personality clashes. Tears. And ultimately, a bond forged that's stronger than any steel chain. The chain will force the women to face the truth about their lives. Will they "break the chains" and change their ways? Or are they destined for a life of crime and punishment?
