Follows eccentric relic collector Steve Santini on his quest to buy and authenticate dark and haunted items for his unusual collections. Santini scours high and low looking for the rare, unusual and tragic; a Titanic deck chair, Jack the Ripper's knife, a monk's cloak from the Spanish Inquisition. Objects that are undeniably supernatural and are connected to iconic events and infamous people who have long since passed.

Santini's burning quest to understand the dark side of humanity and his unique obsession with pain and death is also the reason why Ripley's Believe It or Not has dubbed him the World's Most Extreme Escape Artist. Hundreds of death defying escapes has given him insight into the darker side of the human condition. Helped by his trusted side kick Biker Rob and his brilliant researcher Stef, they enter a world few of us dare to investigate.

EPISODES INCLUDE:

Titanic Deck Chair

Steve is approached by a seller who claims to have an authentic Titanic deck chair. If it's real, it's the find of the century for Steve, a Titanic aficionado. His wild journey visiting a series of experts culminates in a trip to the world famous Titanic Museum in Missouri to compare two chairs side by side. Will they match?

Houdini Handcuffs

Steve gets the rare chance to purchase Victorian handcuffs that were reportedly used by his idol - world famous escape artist Houdini. His exciting journey of authentication includes stops to meet with a quirky crew of Houdini experts and the honor of placing a new bust on Houdini's grave. Steve performs a daring escape involving power drills driving into his head.

Mohawk Axe Head

After purchasing a Mohawk Axe Head online, Steve hits a roadblock when an expert tells him it isn't what he thinks it is. When Steve starts to dig deeper into its history, he discovers it may have come from a burial mound. Steve and Rob's affinity for the natives prompt them to do the right thing and return it to where it belongs.
