Produced in 2004

Julian and Camilla are young travelers who document their journey across Southeast Asia, South America and the Caribbean. They seek an alternate experience away from souvenir stores and close to the heart of various cultures. From food poisoning and getting ripped off by opportunist locals, to hanging out with Mexican rebels and going behind the secrets of South Africa's AIDS epidemic, this series will make you laugh and cry... without ever having to grab your passport.

EPISODES INCLUDE:

Indonesia & Malaysia

Excited about the epic journey ahead, Julian and Camilla soon find out it's not all bliss as they argue travel etiquette, from bargaining techniques to how to get by without toilet paper. Upset after attending a bloody cock-fight and discovering an awful animal market, they are relieved to meet people who rescue abused animals. In Malaysia, Julian restrains himself at an Islamic pop concert and on the legendary Penang they discover that sometimes the best guides are drunk or crazy.

Cuba

Visiting the forbidden Cuba where music and mojitos are the key ingredients to life, they start in Havana wish salsa lessons from Gloria Estefan's former tutor. Not quite having mastered the art of rhythm, Camilla gets set straight by a transvestite dancer. Things turn serious as a personal journalist of Castro explains what Che Guevara means to him and the Cuban people. Finally an excursion to El Morro castle provides an interesting backdrop as Julian and Camilla fight a war of the nastiest words.

Jamaica

Taken on a ride in this land of "no problem mon," problems soon surface as an opportunist surfer aggressively attempts to swindle them in broad daylight. After a serious look at Rastafarian politics, Julian discovers the secret to jerking chicken and Camilla discovers the secret to ganja cultivation. After meeting some of Jamaica's swingers they decide to get down and dirty at the world's most famous free love resort.

South Africa

Arriving in the third most dangerous country in the world, they head for the infamous Soweto, where they meet the mother of an anti-apartheid legend, a trickster who snorts coins and the numerous wives and girlfriends of their tour guide. Up in the Kingdom in the Sky, a punk styled shepherd wows them with his musical ability. In Cape Town, they discuss culture with the leader of the Afrikaner separatist movement before they are given modeling and karaoke lessons by a troop of confident nine year olds.

ABOUT THE PRODUCER

Katipo Productions is a New Zealand-based company formed by Julian Hanton, Tom Fowlie, Ian Hart and Camilla Anderson, who have over 20 combined years of experience in television production. Hanton worked as a director for TVNZ and made several short films before being named director of the WORLD ODYSSEY series. Anderson has been a producer for the last six years, having worked on award-winning music video projects and a feature-length documentary before forming Katipo in 2003.
