Scientific advances have made it possible for more and more mothers to carry multiples to a safe delivery date. But making it through the pregnancy is just the beginning. How do families cope with their multiple blessings at home? We'll follow four families as they navigate through the trials, tribulations and mayhem of multiples.

EPISODES INCLUDE:

Party of Four

The joys and challenges of parenthood are universal. But imagine if you were graced with four children at once. That's the surprise Jackie and Darian Dahl came to grips with two years ago. In Multiples: Party of Four we'll find out what life is really like in the Dahl's house. We'll spend a day in the life of this family of seven, which starts at 5:30am, when their one-and-an-half-year-old quadruplets blink awake simultaneously. Their four-year-old brother has had some major adjusting to do, but he's not alone. Twenty bottles a day, $300 on groceries a week, and 24 dirty diapers a day - welcome to the Dahl's house.

Multiples & Mayhem

Meet Jeannette Villatoro, a mom who is determined to carry her identical twin girls to full term, an uncommon occurrence with multiples... and her persistence pays off. Our second segment follows Bernard Makauole, a stay-at-home father, raising triplets. While his wife Jill is bringing in the bacon, Bernard spends his days cooking it up... that is when he's not changing diapers, playing referee, or kissing boo-boos. Dad loves his role in the family, and wouldn't have it any other way. Next up are the 3-year-old Horner quadruplets, who are giving their parents, Karen and Michael, a run for their money. With three boys and one girl, who do you think is the ringleader? The episode ends with the story of Ruby Chavez, who is raising five two-year-olds on her own — her husband just decided to leave the family. Luckily Ruby's mother and father have just stepped in to fill the void.
